Contents

Acknowledgments VII
List of Contributors VIII

1 Introduction 1
Raanan Rein, Stefan Rinke, and David M.K. Sheinin

2 In Search of Wandering Husbands: Jewish Migration, Desertion, and Divorce between Poland and Argentina, 1919–1939 17
Lelia Stadler

3 Indifference, Hostility, and Pragmatism: an X-Ray of Chilean Right-Wing Attitudes toward Jews, 1932–1940 42
Gustavo Guzmán

4 Diplomacy and Ethnicity: Germans in Brazil (1933–1938) 66
Vinícius Bivar

5 Constructing a Transnational Identity: the Three Phases of Palestinian Immigration to Chile, 1900–1950 85
Hagai Rubinstein

6 Political Immigrants: the "Chileanization" of Arabs and Jews and Their Class Subjectivities, 1930–1970 108
Claudia Stern

7 Over the Rainbow: Costa Rica as a "Geography of Meaning" for U.S. American Immigrants, 1945–1980 131
Atalia Shragai

8 Unsafe Havens for Jewish-Argentine Migrants: the Rise and Fall of the Third Peronist Government and the Traumatic Effects of the 1973 Yom Kippur War 160
Adrián Krupnik

9 Missing Jews: the Memory of Dictatorship in Argentina and the Jewish Identity Diplomacy of José Siderman 189
David M.K. Sheinin

10 Crisscrossing the Oyapock River: Entangled Histories and Fluid Identities in the French-Brazilian Borderland 217
Fabio Santos

11 Together Un-united: Muslims in the Triple Frontier on the Defensive against Accusations of Terrorism 242
Omri Elmaleh

12 Los Muchachos Peronistas Japoneses: the Peronist Movement and the Nikkei 264
Raanan Rein, Aya Udagawa, and Pablo Adrián Vázquez

13 Identity Diversity among Chinese Immigrants and Their Descendants in Buenos Aires 291
Susana Brauner and Rayén Torres

14 "We Colombian Women Are Damned No Matter What We Do": an Analysis of Police Officers' Perceptions and Colombian Women's Experiences during Their Arrest in Ecuador 309
Andrea Romo-Pérez

15 Concluding Essay: Rethinking Latin America in the New Ethnic Studies 326
Jürgen Buchenau and Jerry Dávila

Index 351