

Table of Contents

Foreword

Wendy Bracewell, Alex Drace-Francis	vii
1. Towards a Natural History of East European Travel Writing Alex Drace-Francis	1
2. The Travel Narrative as a (Literary) Genre David Chirico	27
3. The Limits of Europe in East European Travel Writing Wendy Bracewell	61
4. 'They Are Laughing at Us': Hungarian Travellers and Early Modern European Identity Graeme Murdock	121
5. Travels Through the Slav World Wendy Bracewell	147
6. The Odyssey of National Discovery: Hungarians in Hungary and Abroad, 1750–1850 Irina V. Popova-Nowak	195
7. European Identity and Romantic Irony: Juliusz Słowacki's Journey to Greece Maria Kalinowska	223
8. Metaphor and Monumentality: The Travels of Nicolae Iorga Andi Mihalache	237

9. Oh, to Be a European! What Rastko Petrović Learnt in Africa Zoran Milutinović	267
10. Excursions into National Specificity and European Identity: Mihail Sebastian's Interwar Travel Reportage Diana Georgescu	293
11. The Cold-War Traveller's Gaze: Jan Lenica's 1954 Sketchbook of London Katarzyna Murawska-Muthesius	325
12. Images of the West in Bulgarian Travel Writing During Socialism (1945–1989) Rossitza Guentcheva	355
Notes on Contributors	379
Index	381