

Contents

| | |
|---|-------------------|
| Foreword | 1 |
| PART I In the Mirror of Enlightenment and Classicism | 11 |
| 1 Enlightened Absolutism and the Jews | 13 |
| The Coming of the New Age; 13 / Joseph II and the Jews in Austria; 15 / Frederick the Great and the Jews in Prussia; 23 / Dohm's Über die bürgerliche Verbesserung der Juden ; 31 | |
| 2 From Gellert and Klopstock to Lessing and Herder | 35 |
| Influence of the Enlightenment and Classicism; 35 / The Changing Image of the Jew in Literature; 40 / Klopstock; 42 / Wieland; 45 / Prejudice and Tolerance; 47 / Lessing; 50 / Hamann and Herder; 54 | |
| 3 Goethe, Schiller, and Kant | 67 |
| Goethe; 67 / Schiller; 87 / Kant's Critique of Judaism; 93 | |
| PART II The War of Liberation and the Emerging Emancipation | 101 |
| 4 Hope and Disappointment | 103 |
| From Frederick William II to the War of Liberation; 103 / German Victory and Ultraconservative Anti-Semitism; 108 / "Liberal" Foes; 111 / Burschenschaften and Exclusion of the Jews; 113 | |
| 5 German Statesmen and Jewish Emancipation | 116 |
| Changing Attitudes of Baron vom Stein; 116 / Vom Stein's Growing Hostility; 121 / Hardenberg and the Project of | |

Emancipation; 123 / Marwitz's Opposition and Hardenberg's Postwar Policy; 128 / Wilhelm von Humboldt and Full Equality; 133 / Wilhelm and Caroline von Humboldt: Disagreements; 138 / Prussian Military Leaders and Jewish Emancipation; 140

6 German Educators and the Jews 143

Fichte on the French Revolution and the Jews; 143 / Arndt and the Burschenschaften; 154 / Jahn; 164

PART III Hate and Love of Romanticism 167

7 Romanticism and Religion 169

Romanticism and Judaism; 169 / Conversion and Equality; 173 / Schleiermacher's Über Religion; 176 / The Schlegels on Ancient and Contemporary Jews; 182

8 Divided Counsels 185

Schelling and Tieck; 185 / Bettina Brentano: A True Friend; 188 / Clemens Brentano and Achim von Arnim: Enemies of the Jews; 190 / Kleist; 195 / The Faculties of Political Science and Law: Adam Müller and Carl von Savigny; 197 / German Historiography and the Jews; 203

9 The Image of the Jew in Romantic Literature . . . 206

Jewish Character Maligned: Clemens Brentano and Achim von Arnim; 206 / Droste-Hülshoff and Hebel on Tolerance; 207 / Critical Sounds: Grabbe and Hauff; 209 / Poems, Satires, and Dissonances: Chamisso, Platen, Rückert, and Immermann; 211

10 Austria in the Biedermeier Era 215

From Joseph II to Ferdinand I; 215 / Metternich and the Jews; 218 / "The Pen of Europe"; 222 / Nikolaus Lenau and Anastasius Grün; 225 / Grillparzer; 229 / Hebbel; 234

PART IV The Struggle for Equality in the Vormärz . . . 241

11 Toward Jewish Emancipation 243

The New Age and German Jewry; 243 / Liberal Shortcomings; 245 / Jewish Religion, Nationality, and Equality; 246 / The "Christian-German" State and Frederick William IV; 248 / "Judaization" of Germany? 251 / Old Fears and Old Hatreds; 253

12 Jungdeutsche and "Young Palestine" 257

Wolfgang Menzel; 257 / The Novels of Karl Gutzkow and Ahasver Poetry; 260 / Jungdeutsche and Their Critics; 268 /

Emancipation in England—the Political Echo in Germany;
270

13 *Hegel, Left Hegelians, and Anti-Semitism
of the Left* 274

Hegel's Early Anti-Semitism; 274 / Dialectics and "Great Trends" in Jewish History; 276 / Hegel for Emancipation; 278 / Left Hegelianism and the New Theology; 280

14 Scholars, Poets, and Men of Action in the Forties 287

Alexander von Humboldt: A Friend; 287 / Liberal and Revolutionary Poetry; 290 / The "Wirtschaftspolitische Bismarck"; 293 / Bismarck in 1847; 295

PART V The Era of Fulfillment:

Unification and Emancipation 297

15 From the Revolution of 1848/1849 to 1870 299

The Revolution of 1848/1849 in the Germanies; 299 / The Post-Revolutionary Era: Frederick William IV; 302 / Jews in the Struggle for German National Unity; 303 / From the War of 1866 toward Unification and Emancipation; 306

16 Politicians, Political Writers, and Pamphleteers . 312

Bismarck and the Jews prior to Unification; 312 / Riehl and von Rochau; 314 / Hermann Wagener and the Kreuzzeitung; 315 / Friedrich Julius Stahl, the Christian-German State, and Contemporary Criticism; 318

17 Schopenhauer and Wagner 321

"Optimistic" Judaism and Schopenhauer's Philosophy of Pessimism; 321 / The Jew-Hatred of Richard Wagner; 327

18 The Image of the Jew in German Literature 340

The Novels and Stories of Freytag, Dahn, Reuter, and Storm; 340 / The Novels of Raabe and Keller; 347 / Educators, Playwrights, and Poets; 351

PART VI Imperial Germany and the Rise of Anti-Semitism, 1870–1890 357

19 *Bismarck, Nietzsche, and Counter-
Emancipation* 359

In the New Reich; 359 / Bismarck: The Mature Statesman; 360 / Academic and Literary Anti-Semites; 369 / Nietzsche and the Revaluation of All Values; 377

20 Political Parties and the Theorists 389

The Liberal Parties; 389 / The Kulturkampf: Catholics and Jews; 390 / The Debate in the Prussian Landtag, November 1880; 392 / The Roots of Socialist Anti-Semitism; 396 / Friedrich Engels; 397 / German Socialism: Ambivalence and Inconsistency; 403 / Austrian Socialism and Anti-Semitic Inroads; 407

An Overview 409

Notes 415

Bibliography 462

Index 495