

Contents

|                                                                                                                                      |      |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Foreword                                                                                                                             | ix   |
| Judith Herrin, Michael Trapp                                                                                                  |      |
| Contributors                                                                                                                         | xi   |
| List of figures                                                                                                                      | xiii |
| Introduction: the nineteenth- and twentieth-century Socrates                                                                         | xv   |
| Michael Trapp                                                                                                                 |      |
| 1. Socrates in Hegel                                                                                                                 | 1    |
| Glenn W. Most                                                                                                                 |      |
| 2. A simple wise man of ancient times: Kierkegaard on Socrates                                                                       | 19   |
| George Pattison                                                                                                               |      |
| 3. Nietzsche's Socrateases                                                                                                           | 37   |
| Michael Silk                                                                                                                  |      |
| 4. Later views of the Socrates of Plato's Symposium                                                                           | 59   |
| James Lesher                                                                                                                  |      |
| 5. Anselm Feuerbach's Das Gastmahl des Platon                                                                                 | 77   |
| John Henderson                                                                                                                |      |
| 6. From amor Socraticus to Socrates amoris : Socrates and the formation of a sexual identity in late Victorian Britain | 97   |
| Alastair Blanshard                                                                                                            |      |
| 7. The thorn of Sokrates: Georg Kaiser's Alkibiades Saved and Bertolt Brecht's Sokrates Wounded                        | 119  |
| John J. White                                                                                                                 |      |
| 8. 'Socrates knew . . .' affect ( Besetzung ) in Britten's Death in Venice                                             | 141  |
| Christopher Wintle                                                                                                            |      |
| 9. Effacing Socratic irony: philosophy and technê in John Stuart Mill's translation of the Protagoras                  | 167  |
| Alexandra Lianeri                                                                                                             |      |

|                                                                                                    |     |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 10. 'Totalitarian Socrates'Iskra Gencheva-Mikami                                        | 187 |
| 11. 'Gadfly in God's Own Country': Socrates intwentieth-century AmericaMelissa Lane | 205 |
| General bibliography                                                                               | 227 |
| Index                                                                                              | 231 |