

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

Prologue — XIII

Part I: Setting the Stage: The Sex Scene and the Search for an Alternative Historiography

1 Qu'est-ce que la sexualité? — 3

2 The Sex Scene — 8

3 Reflection on a Reflection: Earlier Discussions of Israeli Sex
Scenes — 14

4 Thesis and Antithesis — 24

5 The Hypothesis of Repression — 37

6 Contrariwise: The Applications and Implications of Otherness and Alterity — 44

6.1 The Jewish Position: Sander Gilman — 44

6.2 The Position of Resistance: Judith Butler — 50

7 The Film Viewed — 59

7.1 No Room of Their Own: The Disruption of Space — 61

7.2 Figure This — 68

The Earnestness of Being Important: The Comic Figure — 69

How the Mighty are Fallen: The Victim — 80

"Whose Son is This Youth?": The Child — 87

7.3 Where is My John Wayne? Where is My Muscle Jew? — 92

8 Concluding Words — 95

Part II: The 1960s: Comedy, Victimhood and Paradise Lost

9 The Introduction of Sex through the Prism of the Type Figure — 99

10 “We Have a Little Sister and She Hath no Breasts”: The Comic Figure and the Deterioration of Eroticism in MOTIVE TO MURDER — 101

- 10.1 MOTIVE TO MURDER — 101
- Through the Entrance Hall: The Disrupted Space — 102
 - The Podium: Comedy — 103
 - The Boudoir: Eros Disarmed and the Question of Female Promiscuity — 106
 - The Bedchamber: Sex Scenes — 107
 - On the Veranda: The Meaning of a Damaged Private Sphere — 114

11 “We Are Both Crippled”: Victimhood, Status, and Sex in Dramas and Melodramas — 116

- 11.1 THE DYBBUK AND FORTUNA – Me Against Us: Victims of the Community — 116
- 11.2 IS TEL AVIV BURNING? and EVERY BASTARD A KING – Us Against It: The Victim in the Community — 119
- 11.3 ELDORADO — 121
- No Place for Me: Space and Intrusion — 121
 - It’s All About Me: Male Spectacle — 122
 - Poor Me: Victimhood Stardom — 125
 - Gain and Loss: The Sex Scenes — 126
- 11.4 HE WALKED THROUGH THE FIELDS – Me Too: Following Sherman’s Footsteps — 131
- 11.5 THE HERO’S WIFE — 134
- I am in Pieces: The Fragmented Individual — 134
 - Me, Not Us: Eroticism Rebels — 138
 - It’s not You, It’s Us: Yosef and The Unattractiveness of Community — 139
 - The Third Rival: Casualties of War — 141
 - War Time: The Synchronisation of the Communal Body — 142
 - Finally in the Frame: Sexual Climax — 143
 - Back to Life: The Return to Democratic Space — 144
- 11.6 Shining Through: Conclusion and Commentary — 146

12 Where is the Child? Where is the Adult? The Child Enters the Sex Scene in A NIGHT IN TIBERIAS, NOT MINE TO LOVE, and IRIS — 148

- 12.1 A NIGHT IN TIBERIAS – Paradise Lost: The Clash between Childhood and Adulthood — 149
- 12.2 NOT MINE TO LOVE — 152

- Jerusalem Personified: Internal and External Cityscapes — 152
- Thorny Routine: Eli's Perforated World — 153
- The Memory of the Mother, the Presence of the Son: Absence of Sovereignty — 155
- Mischief, Guilt, and Menace: Unsovereign Affairs — 157
- Once Upon a Time: The Recollection of Youth — 159
- Dysfunctionality: The Non-Sovereign Murderer and Unredeemed Rescuer — 162
- See Me, Feel Me: Male Anti-Spectacle — 163
- 12.3 IRIS — 165
 - Past Present: Untimeliness — 165
 - The Winter of Our Content: The Abhorrence of the Present and the Celebration of the Past — 167
 - "I Once Looked After Him ... A Little": Yoel's Misogyny, Lack of Mastery, and Sexual Surrender — 169
 - Icon and Spectre: The Spectacle of Girlhood — 170
 - Violence and Confusion: The Turbulent End — 174
- 12.4 Children in Danger, Men in Crisis: Conclusion and Commentary — 178

Part III: The 1970s: War, Protest and Youth

- 13 Same Same, But Different: The Politics of Sex and Identity — 183
- 14 Past/Present/Future: The Yom Kippur War in Melodramas — 188
 - 14.1 THREE AND ONE and JUDGEMENT DAY — 189
 - Cry, the Beloved Country: The Political Deployment of Melodrama — 189
 - Common Ground: Family Crisis, Intergenerational Difference, and Men Behaving Badly — 192
 - Differences: Circular vs. Linear Progression, Exterior vs. Interior Space, Desperation vs. Healing — 195
 - Tenderness vs. Violence: Sexual Economies and the Dissipation of the Victim's Sensuality — 200
- 15 "They're Not Nice Guys": Oriental Jewish Identity Enters the Political Arena in the 1970s — 207
 - 15.1 From History to Theory: Oriental Jewish Identity in Israeli Film Theory — 208

- 15.2 LITTLE MAN and HIGHWAY QUEEN — 211
 - “He Who Fucks Alone, Dies Alone”: Liberation from Comedy — 211
 - “It’s Written All Over Your Face”: Elevation and Degradation — 217
 - Social Oppression and the Struggle for Sovereignty — 228

- 16 We Are Young, We’re Not Free: The Face of a New Generation in Youth Films — 229
 - 16.1 LEMON POPSICLE 2: GOING STEADY — 233
 - “C’mon Everybody”: The Perpetual Impertinence of the Gang — 233
 - “I’m Singin’ in the Rain”: The Brazen Act of Self-Assertion and the Fragility of Togetherness — 238
 - “Let’s Twist Again”: The Teenage Clique as a Receptive Network — 241
 - 16.2 Dizengoff 99 — 243
 - “Tell Me You Love Me ... Just for Fun”: The Crystallisation of the Group and the Phantom of the Romantic Couple — 243
 - “Did You Get Many Responses to Your Ad in the Paper?”: The Swinging Scene — 247
 - “The Most Natural Thing in the World”: The Threesome — 249
 - “Don’t You See You’re Ruining Your Life?”: Cinematic Self-Reflection — 253
 - 16.3 Tel Aviv, Sex, 1979: Conclusion and Commentary — 255

- Epilogue — 257

- Bibliography — 259

- Filmography — 269

- Name Index — 273

- Film Index — 277

- Subject Index — 279