

CONTENTS

	Introduction	1
	KATEŘINA ČAPKOVÁ, KAMIL KIJEK, AND STEPHAN STACH
	PART I: PERIPHERY AND CENTER
1	A New Life? The Pre-Holocaust Past and Post-Holocaust Present in the Life of the Jewish Community of Dzierżoniów, Lower Silesia, 1945–1950	15
	KAMIL KIJEK
2	Erased from History: Jewish Migrants in Postwar Czechoslovakia	35
	KATEŘINA ČAPKOVÁ
3	On the Borders of Legality: Connections between Traditional Culture and the Informal Economy in Jewish Life in the Soviet Provinces	54
	VALERY DYMSHITS
	PART II: PERCEPTIONS OF JEWISHNESS
4	From Friends to Enemies? The Soviet State and Its Jews in the Aftermath of the Holocaust	71
	DIANA DUMITRU
5	"I Was Not Like Everybody Else": Soviet Jewish Doctors Remember the Doctors' Plot	91
	ANNA SHTERNSHIS
6	"After Auschwitz You Must Take Your Origins Seriously": Perceptions of Jewishness among Communists of Jewish Origin in the Early German Democratic Republic	111
	ANNA KOCH
7	Being Jewish in Soviet Birobidzhan: Between Stigma and Cynicism	131
	AGATA MAKSIMOWSKA

PART III: TRANSNATIONALISM

- 8 An Alternative World: Jews in the German Democratic Republic, Their Transnational Networks, and a Global Jewish Communist Community 153
DAVID SHNEER
- 9 Soviet Yiddish Cultural Diplomacy in the Post-Stalinist 1950s 174
GENNADY ESTRAIKH
- 10 Family Discourse, Migration, and Nation-Building in Poland and Israel in the Late 1950s 195
MARCOS SILBER
- PART IV: DISSIDENTS
- 11 Three Jewish Social Networks: A (Non-) Encounter in Malakhovka 215
GALINA ZELENINA
- 12 The Opposition of the Opposition: New Jewish Identities in the Illegal Underground Public Sphere in Late Communist Hungary 236
KATA BOHUS
- Acknowledgments 253
- Notes on Contributors 255
- Index 259